

RAILWAY BILL
UP THIS WEEK

Administration Leaders
Claim They Will Pass
It, Despite Conservative Opposition.

TAX COMMISSION

The Hunting Bill Now Up,
Will Be a Bad One
for Pot Hunters.

(Special to The Gazette.)

Madison, April 20.—The Assembly committee on railroads will report the bill establishing a state railway commission for passage, early next week. Its fate in the lower house looks to be uncertain, but administration leaders are confident that it will pass by a very close vote. No one is rash enough to predict that it will pass the senate. The protests from manufacturers and shippers have been offset to a degree, the past week by petitions and resolutions in favor of the bill which have come in in bunches. In response to the letter sent out by chairman Gilman. But the petitions and protests are both looked upon as being largely "inspired" and lack considerably in weight on that account.

Senate Bill
The senate committee on assessment and collection of taxes has reported the ad valorem railway taxation for passage, amending the assembly measure by providing that the law shall not take effect until in 1904, but increasing the license fees for this year from 4 to 5 1/2 per cent. of gross earnings, for the big roads. It looks as though the bill will become a law in this form. The railway men have kept up the fight against the bill, insisting that the railroads are already paying more than their share of the taxes, but they have had little real hope of defeating the measure, and have concentrated their efforts in opposing the railway commission bill.

Game Bill
A bill absolutely prohibiting the sale of game in the state has been agreed on by the joint committee on fish and game, to take the place of the various spring shooting bills which have been introduced. It will permit spring shooting during the month of April, but will not take effect this year in this respect, as the time is too short to make it an object now.

MERGER CAN PAY
MANY DIVIDENDS

Judge Sanborn Decides
Law Point in Favor of the Northern Security Co.

VERY IMPORTANT

Arguments Used May Have Much Bearing on the Appeal Case Now
Pending.

(Special By Scripps-McLae.)
St. Paul, Minn., April 20.—Before Judge Sanborn, this morning, District Attorney Haupt argued against the suspension of the decree which would allow the Northern Securities to pay its May dividends. He claimed that it was a case of statutory grounds, not of equity. He held that the statutes had been violated and that it was not the province of that court to allow the law to be disregarded. He also held that the argument that the market would be seriously affected was not one that should be considered.

Judge Young followed with an argument for the modification of the decree and asked the court that permission be given the company to make its May payment. He held that the markets would be seriously affected if this was not done at the present time.

The Decision
At the conclusion of the arguments Judge Sanborn immediately ruled that the company might pay dividends May 1st, holding that the federal government by injunction preventing the merger from voting stock on Northern Pacific and Great Northern has sufficient hold on the concern and also that the injunction against dividend as ancillary and could not be modified by court.

Decision Appealed
Immediately after the decision the Northern Securities company filed papers of appeal and following the order of the court gave bond to the sum of fifty thousand dollars. Every point made by the company was sustained in a decree of modification. Judge Sanborn holding that no matter which way the United States supreme court decided the case the stock holders must ultimately receive their dividends for May.

Stocks Rise
The decree of modification in the Northern securities caused the shares in the company in New York to jump from 94 1/2 to 99 on the stock exchange today.

TOBACCO TALK FOR GROWERS

CONDITIONS ALL OVER COUNTRY ARE DEPICTED.

BUYING NEARLY COMPLETED

Interesting Decisions on Tobacco
Problems Brought Up in Eastern Courts.

From a news part of view the local market is interesting. There is little to be said, chiefly because so little tobacco remains unbought. While buyers are always on the alert for good leaf and will have it, yet they shun the proposition of seeking the commodity when much riding is necessary, with but little goods to show as the result.

Then too, the growers are stirring around making preparations for the approaching season and their interest from now on will be centered in the prospective crop. Mention was made in last week's report of the seed problem and the word of warning given by the Edgerton Reporter was referred to.

Reports still come in that the seed procurable is not all of the best and it will stand farmers in hand to give this matter proper attention.

Several of the local warehouses are closed, only about a dozen assorting rooms being in operation. There may be a few belated deliveries yet and some packers may keep open several weeks, but after all the big end of the story is told.

The assembly has passed the Dahl bill, providing for the equalized assessment of leaf tobacco in the state. The measure was introduced by Mr. Dahl, of Vernon county, and its provisions are substantially these:

Whenever complaint is made to the tax commission by any taxpayer, of any city, village or town that the leaf tobacco in his place has been assessed and equalized by the city, village or town board of equalization at a value higher than the same grade of tobacco has been assessed and equalized in any other city, village or town of the state the tax commission is empowered and directed to hear complaints and evidence and to equalize the same by adding to or deducting from the valuations so fixed by the local boards. The tax commission must certify to the city, town and village clerks before the first day of November annually any change made in the valuation so certified. The supervisor of assessment of each county shall certify on or before the first day of September annually to the tax commission the valuation of leaf tobacco as equalized by the city, town and village boards of equalization in his county.

As far as is known but a small percentage of growers have got their plant beds in shape as yet, having been delayed by the cold, wet weather of last week. It is safe to assume, however, that a different state of affairs will exist by the end of the present week, by which time most of the beds will be grown.

A decision of great interest to tobacco buyers and growers was rendered on March 28th, last in the suit of Gray vs. Meyer et al. in the seventh judicial district of New York at Lyons, N. Y. by Supreme Court Justice James W. Dunwell, says the New York Leaf.

The facts of the case were as follows: In August 1901, the defendants contracted with Gray to buy his standing crop at 11 cents a pound. In the memorandum of sale, which was signed by both parties, it was stated that Gray was to bundle his tobacco "free from hail, frost, pole-burn, stem-rot, fat, wet butts, wet tobacco and trashy stuff," and also that Gray should deliver the tobacco in January "free from damage." In January Gray offered the tobacco to the defendants. On examination a considerable portion was found to be grasshopper eaten. The defendants thereupon refused to take delivery unless Gray would sort out all that was grasshopper eaten. Gray refused to do this, sold his tobacco for what he could get, and sued the defendants for $386, the difference between the contract price and what he received. Judgment was given to Gray for the amount claimed. Judge Dunwell holding that the memorandum of sale should be construed strictly, and that as it did not specify injuries by grasshoppers along with the defects enumerated, Gray had made a rightful tender in including the grasshopper eaten leaf along with the rest. More important still is the interpretation or construction of the phrase, "free from damage." According to the learned Justice it has no meaning outside of the specific ill recited in the memorandum. As a matter of fact the latter were few in number, and did not cover a dozen other things which might make the leaf worthless commercially. If Justice Dunwell's decision is affirmed on appeal, it will have the effect of checking, if not of suppressing, the buying of standing crops, or else a changing of the present memorandum by including every possible defect, fault or blemish which may obtain in the leaf during growth, curing and delivering.

A brief survey of the leading markets shows but little business transacted, Edgerton, Baldwinville and the Connecticut Valley joining in this report. New York has some large transactions in Havana leaf, while both Lancaster and Malmisburg reported moderate buying, with the Pennsylvania town ahead on deliveries.

NEW BOILERS TO BE INSTALLED
Two of Improved Pattern Will Soon Be Placed in the Janesville Water Works.
Boilers are to be changed at the Janesville Water Works pumping station, and that fact is making necessary a large amount of extra work. Unlike almost any other power plant, the pumping station can not be shut down even temporarily, because of the ever present danger of a bad fire.

Consequently a temporary boiler house, 24 by 32 feet, is being built just north of the pumping station and in this a couple of old boilers will be placed for temporary use until the new ones can be properly installed and made ready for business. The three new boilers are of the horizontal tubular type, made in Oshkosh and of 100 horsepower each, the old boilers being only 70 horsepower.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Henderson have gone to Chicago for the week.

TOOTHPICKS ARE MADE IN MAINE

The Majority of This Country's Supply Are Made from White Birch.

There is one article of manufacture that is used so extensively in the United States that no one has an idea of the annual amount consumed, namely, wooden toothpicks. According to an expert the number is incalculable. Millions upon millions of the tiny wooden silvers are turned out every year from American factories alone, and on top of this tremendous output come importations from Portugal and Japan and other countries nearly as large as the domestic product.

Most of the American toothpicks, according to the New York Times, come from Franklin county, in Maine near the forest home of the White Birch, out of which 95 per cent of the domestic toothpicks are made. This wood is soft and pliable and of admirable resistance for the purpose for which it is used. Whole mills in Maine are devoted to supplying the country with toothpicks, and in the industry is to be found some of the finest and most intricate machinery. So tremendous is the output of these machines that in a brief season, during the spring enough toothpicks can be made to supply the market of the entire country for the year to come.

A further idea of the capacity of the machines may be found in the fact that only 100 men are employed to operate and run all the mills in Franklin county. Other mills of this kind are scattered throughout Pennsylvania and Massachusetts and western New York, but the real home of the toothpick is in Maine. White Birch is not the only wood used for the domestic toothpick, maple and poplar are employed as well, but birch, has the property of retaining its forest odor and sweetness.

The felling of toothpick trees is only incidental to the regular lumber work of the Maine foresters. No especial men are sent out to hunt up suitable trees. But whenever the foreman of the gang of woodsmen comes across a tree especially adapted to toothpicks, he orders it felled and laid aside. The branches of the tree are then trimmed and only the trunk itself is transported to the mills. There the bark is skinned and the naked trunk is run through a machine which severs it into veneers. "Veneers" is the technical expression for thin strips of wood, no thicker than a piece of blotting paper and no wider than the length of a toothpick. Once the trunk has been cut into these thin strips of wood, only one process remains to turn out the toothpicks, fit for packing and shipping to the market. The veneers are fed into a second machine supplied with sharp rotary knives, that whirl at a tremendous high rate of speed, snipping the veneers into toothpicks at the rate of hundreds of thousands an hour.

It is only the so-called "fancy" toothpick that is made in this country. In Portugal from where most of the orange wood toothpicks are imported, the sticks are sharpened by young girls, who in return for turning out "picks" sharp as needles and smooth as ivory are paid 3 cents a day.

The Japanese toothpicks are made of fine reeds, and are distinct from those sent to this country by the Portuguese manufacturers. A Japanese toothpick is delicate and thin as tissue paper, and nevertheless, strong and pliable. The Japanese toothpick maker earns even less than his Portuguese fellow craftsman, his remuneration being a fraction more than 2 cents a day. In short, a thousand toothpicks may be bought in Japan for as much as it costs to pack and box 5,000 of American make.

NEW BOILERS TO BE INSTALLED

Two of Improved Pattern Will Soon Be Placed in the Janesville Water Works.

Boilers are to be changed at the Janesville Water Works pumping station, and that fact is making necessary a large amount of extra work. Unlike almost any other power plant, the pumping station can not be shut down even temporarily, because of the ever present danger of a bad fire.

Consequently a temporary boiler house, 24 by 32 feet, is being built just north of the pumping station and in this a couple of old boilers will be placed for temporary use until the new ones can be properly installed and made ready for business. The three new boilers are of the horizontal tubular type, made in Oshkosh and of 100 horsepower each, the old boilers being only 70 horsepower.

REV. VAUGHAN'S TOPIC, "COURAGE"

BAPTIST DIVINE PREACHES FROM JOSHUA.

GIVES ADVICE TO YOUNG MEN

An Able Address, Full of Excellent
Thoughts for the Rising Generation.

Rev. Richard M. Vaughan, pastor of the First Baptist church, addressed a large audience upon the subject of "Courage." His remarks were directed in particular to the young men, but were much enjoyed by all. His sermon was in part as follows:

"Courage"
Joshua 1:9—"Be of a good courage."

Courage is a virtue everywhere admired. The ancients, under the name of fortitude, gave it place among the cardinal virtues. So highly do we esteem it that we are ready to condone its possessor many a fault. Whatever else one has if he has not courage we despise him. His virtues are arrows with no bow to speed them. Courage is propulsive power. It alone gives efficiency to character.

It is true that courage is to some degree relative. A man may be brave in some respects yet timid in others. Many a man who could lead a forlorn hope would tremble like an aspen leaf if called upon to make an after dinner speech. Miles Standish, the good soldier of Plymouth, had no fear of Indians. He could defy Watawmut and all his tribe. But when it came to a proposal of marriage to Priscilla, the Puritan maiden, he was a veritable poltroon. As there was no telephone in the colony he sent John Alden as his proxy and of course scored an ignominious defeat. Perhaps there is such a thing as a physical brave and a moral coward. The man with an empty life is often reckless with it. The highest courage is always joined with a sense of the worth of life. When they told Napoleon that an officer turned pale when he received orders, he replied, "He is one of the bravest men in the army; he appreciates the meaning of danger but does his duty in spite of it."

There is in every life a need of courage. It has always been so. Man has had to subdue the earth with long and courageous battle. He contended at the first with wild beasts. The Troglodyte always kept his club handy for deadly enemies were all about him. In the military ages courage has been at a premium. For ages war was a constant fact. Men fought in the long ago largely hand in hand. They hewed and clubbed each other. There was need of high personal courage.

And the same need exists today. The beasts of prey have largely disappeared. War is passing away with the barbarism of which it is a part. But the old courage is needed in the new age. Moral battles call for it. On the tomb of a good knight there is this instructive inscription: "Here lies a good soldier whom all must applaud. Who fought many battles at home and abroad. But the hottest engagement he ever was in, Was the conquest of self in the battle with sin."

We need courage to refuse sin. Modern civilization garnishes evil, with many spacious attractions. There is a primrose path to the everlasting burning. Temptation often comes in terms which makes refusal an embarrassment. One is with companions. They urge participation. Possibly they will consider us "green" if we draw back. "Green?" What of it? Better be "green" as the succulent vernal leaves than have to say with the blase Lord Byron in the early prime of his life: "My days are in the serene and yellow leaf." Let me tell you something. Mother's apron strings make the best neckties.

In all the walks of life it takes courage to live a blameless life. Not long ago Adellecks, the unspeakable Gas Adellecks, tricked L. H. Ball, congressman from Delaware and champion of an unbought ballot, into an interview. He offered him a seat in the United States senate for his influence, or defeat with respect to re-election to the house of representatives in case of opposition. With his political future at stake, his very livelihood he scorned the proffer. He did not know then that a turn of the tide would soon bear him into the senate.

But an equal courage is needed to forsake sin. When we do wrong we often become entangled. If we think of asserting our freedom we cannot, we dare not. Even to acknowledge transgression calls for courage. Davis gave many a proof of bravery but none so signal as when he bowed his head before Nathan's arraignment and said, "I have sinned." Are you compromised enmeshed? Fight your way out of it.

To confess our faith in Christ calls out our courage. We shrink from a public pledge to Christian ideals. We dread comment, perhaps ridicule. A man who weighed two hundred and fifty pounds intended to join a church. But companions laughed him out of it. He weighed two hundred and fifty pounds but he was a moral coward. When the courageous spirit is frequent a man confesses his faith. When the rough riders buried the eight men killed at Las Guasimas, a sergeant stepped from the ranks and said: "Captain, I've never been baptised. I love God and I wish to confess Him before men. I shall henceforth try to do His will. Yesterday I received my baptism of fire. May I not receive today at your hands the baptism of water?"

The service of God requires courage. We cannot live positive lives without it. If we drive wolves from the carcasses they will snap at us. When Theodore Roosevelt entered the New York legislature he found inequity entrenched. He proposed to fight it. Friends told him he was imperiling his future. But he dared to smite it. Public sentiment responded and he won his first victory for reform.

What is the secret of courage? We may answer from many points of view. One secret is integrity. The man of integrity is an integer. Sin divides, weakness induces fear. According to Hamlet conscience makes us cowards. The wicked are scattered by the sound of a driven leaf. It is the righteous who are bold as a lion. There are no better soldiers known to history than the Swedes under Gustavus Adolphus and the Ironsides under Cromwell. Men who sang hymns as they went to battle. The clean life is the courageous life. It fears no exposure, it dreads no judgment.

Consecration means courage. I am brave when we forget ourselves. If we can become absorbed in some noble task courage comes. It is hard to hold troops under fire. But command them to go into action, give them something to do and fear reports. Like as not some brave fellow will get a bullet and scarcely heed it until the battle is over. Give yourself to do the will of God.

We get courage also when we have fellowship with courageous men. There is contagion in moral qualities. Fear can become an infection. It was so at Bull Run. But courage also is contagious. A boy of eighteen at Gettysburg frightened as thought at the mouth of hell testified that the sight of Hancock riding down the line, not a muscular quivering the incarnation of a soldier, made a hero out of him.

The supreme instance of courage is Jesus of Nazareth. It is a man's courage measured by the greatness of the task he undertakes? Jesus entered public life with the express purpose of the spiritual conquest of the race. Is there a criterion of courage in the strength of the enemies against which a man pits his strength?

Jesus defied the powerful ruling classes of his kingdom to outcasts, his disregard of petty and enslaving religious traditions, his exposure of the hypocrisy of cruelty of the ringsters who ruler the people. Is a man's courage manifest in his attitude toward death? Jesus bore in pain and torture with self-control and serenity and endured the death of the cross with fearless sublimity. By every test of courage he accredited himself the foremost of men. And whoever welcomes the influence of his life enters into his courage.

ROYAL LEAGUE WENT TO BELOIT

Fully Fifty Members of the Local Lodge, with Outside Guests,
Visited Line City.

Nearly half a hundred members of the local lodge of the Royal League went to Beloit Saturday night as the guests of the Line City lodge. A number of Milwaukee and Chicago Royal Leaguers accompanied the local party, and returned with them at the close of the evening spending the night at the Myers house and returning to their homes Sunday morning. The attendance at the gathering was about two hundred.

The fellowship meeting was an entire success. Among the speakers were Supreme Archon W. E. Hyde, Supreme Scribe C. E. Piner, W. B. Lewis, T. V. Dalley, Gilbert Cowan, J. B. Castino, J. D. King, of this city, and H. J. Anderson of Beloit. A musical and literary program filled in the intervening time until the body adjourned to the upper supper room, after which the local party returned on the late interurban car.

Those who spent the night in this city were W. B. Lewis, George Gell, Gilbert Cowan, T. V. Dalley, all of Milwaukee, and Charles E. Piper, J. L. Ponle, E. S. Philpot, George E. Fink, and W. E. Hyde of Chicago.

Those who signed the subscription list for the "Chaperons" received their seats at the Myers Grand this morning, the rush for the box office forecasting a crowded house Wednesday evening. The theatergoers who failed to get their names on the subscription list, which has been held open for the past week, will have an opportunity tomorrow morning to secure seats when the general sale opens. The subscription list, although large, did not clean out the house, and early comers will be able to secure good tickets tomorrow.

SCHOOL EXHIBIT PLEASES PARENTS

The Lincoln School Pupils Are Very Proficient in Their Work.

More than a few parents were surprised Saturday evening when they were given an opportunity to see the degree of proficiency which is attained by the grade pupils in musical and art work. The program given at the high school building by the Lincoln school pupils, under the supervision of their instructors, was unusually interesting, and incidentally netting a neat sum for a piano for the Lincoln building.

In the reception room, Supt. Buell's office, and the school board room, on the main floor of the high school building, was an array of drawings and water color paintings by members of the school, up to the eighth grade. There were drawings from model, drawings to illustrate physiology study, pen sketches of heads, and water colors of landscapes. A few examples of weaving with worsteds illustrated the work done in the lowest grades. The high school orchestra discoursed delightful music while the guests examined the exhibit.

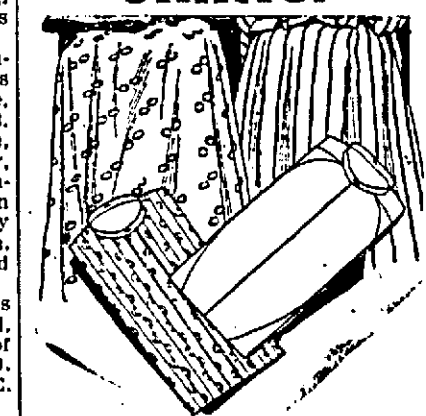

At eight o'clock the musical program was given in the gymnasium. The program, as printed in the Gazette Saturday, was carried out entire, surprising and delighting the large audience, most of whom parents of the performers. The musical and drill work revealed an amazing degree of ability and spoke well for the careful training which had been given.

PICTURES GOOD: AUDIENCE SMALL

But Few Really Knew What a Treat
They Missed, Saturday Night.

No better moving pictures have ever been exhibited in this city than those Lyman H. Howe which were booked at the Myers Grand Saturday afternoon and evening, and it is doubtful if any similar attraction ever drew a smaller house. The audience was so diminutive that the two programs booked for Sunday were declared off. It is perhaps as well that no greater number of persons saw the pictures, as those who did will never again be able to enjoy the blurry, buzzy, eye-tingling views which commonly pass as moving pictures.

THE ETERNAL CITY

BEAUTY AND GRANDEUR OF ANCIENT ROME.

Tragedies of Olden Times That Have Been Wrought Out Here Lend Interest to the Spot—Where Messalina Reveled in Wild Orgies.

(Special Correspondence.)

The prominence of the dome of St. Peter's in every view of the city both within and without the walls, is constantly felt by the traveler as well as by the dweller in Rome. It is as the note and symbol of the city.

This majestic construction of Michael Angelo, whose pathetic devotion to his work, which he did without pay, lends a charm to the sight of it, as one looks at it from between the ilexes that overshadow the fountain in front of the French academy or from the platform of the Pincian hill. This is one of the earliest resorts of the traveler to Rome. From this height he may look down on the city and behold a prospect only less attractive than that seen from the ed to death, and the sentence was executed.

At the other side of the city gentler scenes attract the stranger in the bright, sunny winter days. Here, on the Via Tuscolana, outside the gate of the Lateran, a pleasant road leads to the Porta Furba, or Thieves' Gate, a site which furnishes a series of most picturesque views. The gate itself is an arch in the aqueduct of Sixtus V., that marvelous pope of over three centuries ago who emulated the ancient emperors in the works he achieved in his brief reign of five years.

The evil name the gate bears comes to it from the fact that it was the haunt of brigands many years ago, who found it a suitable place for despoiling the travelers to and from Frascati obliged to pass by this way. The evil reputation that it bore passed away, and now the artist in search of the picturesque may be seen day after day making a charming picture of the pretty fountain, or the glorious view that opens out over the Campagna in the direction of Frascati.

A short distance beyond the gate, and on the left of the road, a mound once topped by a medieval tower concealed the tomb within which stood the largest marble sarcophagus in Rome. The mound was known as Monte del Grano, and the sarcophagus found within it is now in the Capitoline museum, and the reliefs upon it which belong to the noblest period of Greco-Roman art, represent the story of Achilles among the daughters of King Lyncomedes, when he selected the sword instead of the distaff, and was thereby discovered by the wily Ulysses. What is still more memorable concerning this sarcophagus is that within it was found the celebrated Portland vase, one of the most antiquarian treasures of the British museum.

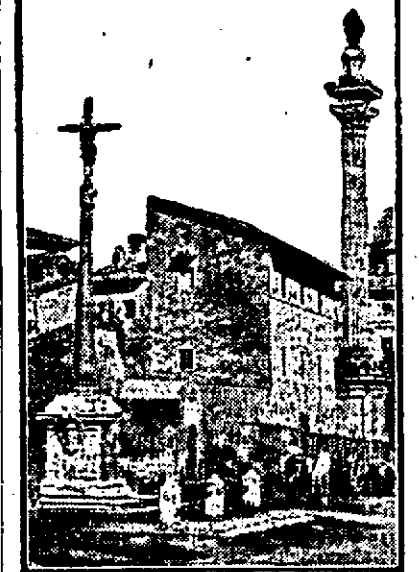

Near at hand a solitary country road brings you to the old Appian Way, via Appia Antica. That road seems to have existed even in the twilight of ancient Roman history. It is a scene on which the great men of the past played some part or another. It was a symbol of the Roman mind and a sign of the Roman power. It was no mere plant highway of commerce, says a writer, in gracious windings, accommodating itself to the needs of men and to the difficulties of nature. Rigid as the Roman rule, it sealed the hills and spanned the valleys; the crooked must be made straight before it, and the rough places. No kindly chain, gently binding nation to nation, but a weapon of war—straight as the spear of the soldier, as the rod of the dictator, as the flight of an arrow, it shot over mountain and chasm, through forest and marsh—not to link the nations

But the Pincio offers charms of another sort than these. Here the band plays in the afternoon and the fashion of the city and its famous persons are to be seen driving in the restricted path allowed in this comparatively small garden.

The shaded paths, the admirable flowers, the statues showing out white against the greenery, the busts of famous men on pedestals and the warm, pleasant air contribute to make this not only one of the chief resorts of Rome, but also a spot that is famous in the world. And as it is to-day, so has it been in the past. The tragedies of the antique time which have been wrought out here, with all their blood-curdling detail, add a strange interest to the spot.

It was here, on this "Hill of Gardens," that Messalina, the wife of the Emperor Claudius, gave herself up to the wild orgies which have contributed to render her name infamous to all time. While her husband was away at Ostia she took possession of the villa that occupied this site, and held high revels there. It was the autumn season; Messalina, wilder than ever, celebrated the vintage feasts in these gardens. The grapes were in the vine press, the juice of it flowed in great vats; the Bacchantes danced deliriously, arrayed as they were, in the skins of wild beasts. Messalina, with her locks streaming wildly, a thyrsus in her hand and cornucopia on her feet, waved her head to and fro like a mad creature to the music of the dance.

In the midst of these revels a certain Vectius Valens climbed a high tree. "What do you see?" cried out some one below. "A great storm comto each other, but to blind the ends of the earth to Rome. And now along its lonely sides the tall rank grass waves sadly amidst the close pressed files of defaced and nameless tombs. The beetle hums amidst the solitude, and the lizard basks on the prostrate marble statue of a senator or a warrior, with mutilated limbs and broken nose. Here on some tombs the half length figures of husband and wife, holding affectionately each other's right hand reveal that the loves and joys of domestic life prevail among the fierce Romans of the past as they do in the present.

White Ants as Food.
A recent book on the Kongo Free State gives this picture of the fondness of the natives for white ants: "In the white ant month the natives have a very busy time. The river is deserted and men and women, boys and girls, go out to gather the white ant for food. I cannot say I admire their taste, but the white ant is not bad as food—merely very rich. In this month he is about an inch long; the natives gather him in hundreds, pull off the wings and roast him. The native boys have a shorter way with him. Sometimes at mess white ants dropped on to the table, attracted by the light. The boys, who were waiting, pounced on them, and without further ceremony popped them into their mouths."

Future Naval Warfare.
The theory of building many small ships with a view to covering our coast line is false, for the reason that in future wars battleships will never be scattered in isolated positions for the purpose of doing police duty. They will be gathered into fleets, and the fortunes of war will depend entirely upon the fortunes of these fleets.—Exchange.

SUMMER SHOWS NOW ARRANGED

Manager Myers Plans to Have a Good Stock Company Here During Hot Weather.

If plans which Manager Myers has under consideration are carried out successfully, the Myers Grand will, for the first time in its history, not be dark during the summer months. His project is to secure a first class stock company for a period of ten weeks, beginning May 25, or at some date as soon after that as possible, to present a series of royalty plays, with plenty of specialties, and interspersed now and then with a complete vaudeville program.

Wants Repertoire People
With this project in view Mr. Myers has inserted "ads" in two of the leading dramatic papers inviting correspondence with managers who have stock companies which they wish to keep together during the summer months. He has already received a number of replies, all favorable to his plan, from such well known people as Harold Kelly of the Manhattan Comedy company, Mervyn Dallas of the Dallas Repertoire Co., the Chase-Lister Co., the Empire Stock Co., Loyal Ford, and other companies, many of which have been playing in only the largest cities of the country, but must secure a suitable location for the dull summer months.

Several of the managers have taken care to add the information that the members of their companies are all reputable people, not a "hoor" in the lot, and decided acquisitions for the locality in which they settle.

Good Companies Only
Ever since last fall, when Charles P. Salisbury consulted Mr. Myers with regard to organizing a "stock circuit" for the summer, with Janesville as one of the seven stands in the circuit, the latter has been canvassing the situation with an eye to booking a repertoire company for the summer. The Salisbury scheme has come to nothing, but Mr. Myers believes there is sufficient demand for such a bill to fill the house at popular prices for about six weeks out of the ten weeks' engagement. For the remaining four weeks the company would play neighboring towns. He plans for a change of bill every other night, and he is only corresponding with managers who control high grade royalty plays.

GONE TO THEIR REWARD

Mrs. Mary Harvey
Mrs. Peter Dolan and Miss Kathryn Dolan are in Chicago to attend the funeral of the former's sister, Mrs. Mary Harvey. The deceased leaves one daughter.

Thomas Jameson
Rev. S. G. Huey was the officiating clergyman Saturday afternoon at the funeral of the late Thomas Jameson, held from his home in the town of Harmony. The wide acquaintance of the deceased and the high respect in which he was held made the attendance unusually large. The interment was in Harmony cemetery.

Jennie Jiru
After an extended illness Miss Jennie Jiru passed away Saturday afternoon, at the age of eighteen years leaving a mother, Mrs. Annie Jiru, and a brother to mourn her untimely death. The funeral was held this morning from St. Mary's church, Rev. W. A. Goebel officiating. The remains were taken to Mt. Olivet for burial.

The pallbearers were Frank Bier, John Baar, Louis Baar and Frank Baar.

Joseph Alonzo Sleeper
The remains of the late J. A. Sleeper, formerly of this city, were brought here from Chicago today and buried in the family lot at Oak Hill cemetery, where a brief service was held. The funeral services were held from the Chicago home, 5745 Washington avenue. Mr. Sleeper's wife survives him.
Mr. Sleeper was born Oct. 15, 1818 in Bethany, New York. In 1841 he entered the law office of Dilbe & Martindale in Batavia, N. Y. He was admitted to the court of common pleas of Genesee county, N. Y., in 1844. His first partnership was with Hon. Seth Wakeman, the firm name being Wakeman & Sleeper until 1848. Later Mr. Sleeper removed to Janesville, and associated himself with Mr. David I. Daniels, until the spring of 1863, when he entered into co-partnership with the late William M. Tallman and the late Charles Norton, both of whom died at Janesville.

In April, 1863, Mr. Sleeper removed to Chicago, where he has since resided, and in the fall of 1865 the late Henry K. Whitton entered into a co-partnership with Mr. Sleeper under the name of Sleeper & Whitton, which continued until Mr. Whitton's death, which occurred July 14th, 1886. Mr. Sleeper was chairman of the committee on resolutions at Madison, 1854, when the republican party was organized, when he and the late Judge Wyman Spooner prepared and wrote the republican platform which was adopted by that convention and upon which the republican party of Wisconsin won its victories for many years.

AWAKE FOR FOURTEEN WEEKS

Indiana Farmer After Months of Wakefulness Gets to Sleep at Last.
Flora, Ind., April 20.—John Lane, a farmer near this city, slept five hours Saturday night, the first sleep he has had for fourteen weeks. About four months ago Lane suffered an attack of nervous prostration during a fire which broke out in a neighbor's residence and since that time he had not slept a minute, but kept walking about the place. Doctors were unable to cope with the case. Lane weighed 180 pounds three months ago, but now weighs only 117 pounds.

GIVES $1,000,000 TO COLLEGE

Mrs. Elizabeth Milbank Anderson is Generous Donor to Barnard.

New York, April 20.—Formal announcement of Mrs. Elizabeth Milbank Anderson's gift of $1,000,000 to Barnard College was made by the trustees of that institution. Her identity as the generous donor was discovered some days ago, but Barnard's officials were pledged to silence until the title to the land embodied in her gift should actually pass to the college. Mrs. Anderson is the wife of A. A. Anderson, the portrait painter, and the daughter of Jeremiah Milbank of this city, who at his death left an estate of $10,000,000 to his son Joseph and his daughter Elizabeth. The total of her gifts to Barnard exceeds $2,000,000.

ADMITS KILLING TWO PERSONS

Ranchman Confesses He Slew Man and His Wife in Wyoming.

Newcastle, Wyo., April 20.—All mystery surrounding the disappearance of J. W. Church and his wife, formerly of Omaha but more recently owners of a ranch near here, has been cleared up by the confession of "Slim" Clifton, who has been under arrest on suspicion of having murdered the couple. Clifton admits that he killed them and has told the authorities where he buried the bodies. When confronted with evidence recently found by Lew Jenny of Gillette Clifton broke down and confessed. Clifton is a ranchman and lived near the Church place.

MITCHELL TO EXPLAIN AWARD

President of Mine Workers Goes to Anthracite Field.

Indianapolis, April 20.—President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers returned to Indianapolis after a brief visit with his family at Spring Valley, Ill., and left for the anthracite field to interpret the award of the anthracite commission for the miners, many of whom have not been able to understand the conditions. Secretary Wilson is trying to adjust the differences between the miners and operators of the Clearfield, Pa., district, and Vice President Lewis is attending the convention of the miners at Huntington, W. Va.

Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Rowe left today for their summer home at Lake Koshkonong.

SOLVES THE PROBLEM

Hyomel Removes Terror of Asthma—Money Back if it Fails.

One who has not had the disease cannot appreciate the terrors of asthma. Those who are subject to it, even in a mild form, will welcome the news that there is at last a remedy that can be relied upon to cure. W. J. Hanson of Dover, N. H., writes: "I received the Hyomel yesterday afternoon and it came in just the right time, for I was having a bad spell of asthma and was sitting in my chair trying to get a long breath, but it was hard work. I commenced to use Hyomel, and I wish you could have seen the change it made in my breathing. I am feeling all right again today and shall go to work tomorrow. I think Hyomel is wonderful."

Clark M. Robinson, Manerville, N. Y., writes: "The Hyomel I sent for last Tuesday while suffering with asthma, came just in time to save me from death."

Prof. George L. A. Martin, principal of school No. 27, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: "A few breaths of Hyomel almost instantaneously banished my asthmatic troubles."

This whole page could be filled with similar expressions of gratitude from those whom Hyomel has cured of asthma, but a stronger proof than all letters is the fact that the proprietors authorize the People's Drug Co. to return the money to anyone who uses Hyomel for asthma, and does not get relief. No questions will be asked; just say you want your money back, and the People's Drug Co. will refund it.

Saved
From Horror of Sudden Death.
Terribly Battered, Severe Pain.
Dr. Miles' Heart Cure Cured Completely.

When your heart is right you are unconscious that you have one; when anything goes wrong you know it at once—if you take heed. The heart warns by shortness of breath, palpitation, fluttering, hard beating, pain in chest, left side, or between shoulder blades, fainting, smothering or sinking spells. The only reliable remedy that any one knows of is Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. It has always cured when nothing else would even help. Read the remarkable statement of Mrs. Ingram: "Dr. Miles' Heart Cure saved my life and Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve saved me from insanity. I was very skeptical when I began using them but my boy begged me to give them a fair trial and I bought three bottles of the Heart Cure and four of the Nerve. My heart fluttered so and I could hardly walk because from my knees to my feet my legs were terribly bloated in the afternoon. I suffered from terrible burning in my throat. The top of my head was sore, suffered pain in the small of my back, I lost my appetite and could not sleep. I suffered from pains in my left shoulder, swelling under left arm, pain around my heart, shortness of breath and extreme nervous spells. The doctor gave me up but Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Nerve and Liver Pills cured me completely. My pains and aches and palpitation are all gone and I am now enjoying good health. I cheerfully recommend Dr. Miles' Remedies and hope that others may experience the same benefit that I have." Mrs. N. A. Ingram, Stanton, Mich.

SAYS PRESENT RATES ARE FAIR

W. S. Cargill, the largest shipper of grain, coal and cattle in Western Wisconsin, is even more emphatic than is Mr. Hirschheimer in his opposition to the proposed rate commission. He discussed the matter as follows:

"To assume that any body of men can with intelligence and equity adjust the tariffs and direct the business of the concerns operating the shipping facilities of this state, practically strangers to the business as they must be, and make an improvement on the efforts of men who have made a life study of the business, is it seems to me absolute folly.

"It is the purpose to make the distance the basis of the government regulation, that is shippers at equal distances from a given market must pay the same price for their transportation. This seems fair at first thought, but it is not always fair, and it is a misconception of this point which leads to much confusion and to cries of 'foul.' The railroads have on instances given what appears to be preferential rates in an effort to do justice to producers.

"For instance, supposing that a certain product comes from a territory a hundred miles square, the farthest point in it being 100 miles from the market and the nearest 75 miles. This territory is treated so as to make it a group of shipping stations, and to put them all on the same basis as to rates. Then the production of the material is fostered and the profits of each man are the same. Under the commission, this could not be done.

"This rebate talk is founded on nothing but speculation on the part of theorists who do not know what they are talking about. We are doing business with the railroads. Naturally they wish to accommodate us, and for this reason we are on friendly terms with them. They are accommodating and by dealing with them directly, any shipper, large or small, can get better accommodations than could possibly be secured through the efforts of an arbitrary and the mechanical government commission. There is nothing to be gained and much to be lost by the unwarranted interference with the business of carrying companies which this bill contemplates."

The Milwaukee Sentinel of last Saturday published a number of interviews from prominent shippers, on the much discussed rate commission. Among them was the above candid statement from W. S. Cargill which will be read with interest by Janesville people as Mr. Cargill was formerly a Janesville boy.

He has been in business for many years and is one of the heaviest shippers of the northwest. That he voices the sentiment of the shippers throughout the state, will not be questioned by any unprejudiced mind. Town meeting petitions amount to nothing, and should not influence the legislature in dealing with this question.

Mr. Cargill is handling farm products and nothing else. He pays freight on more wheat every year than the state of Wisconsin produces, and he knows enough about the business to appreciate the fact that the farmer is directly benefited.

The legislature is contemplating suicide to the business interests of the state when it considers with any degree of favor the measure now pending. It hardly seems possible that an intelligent body of men would do this. It is to be hoped for the good of the state that wise council will prevail.

SOUND DOCTRINE

"When a great corporation is sued for violating the anti-trust law it is not a move against property. It is a move in favor of property, because when you make it evident that all men, great and small alike, have to obey the law, you are putting the safe guard of the law around all men. When you make it evident that no man shall be excused for violating the law, you make it evident that every man will be protected from violations of the law."

The quotation is from President Roosevelt's Boston speech last fall and was uttered just after he had instructed attorney general Knox to investigate the Northern Securities company.

It will be remembered that he was severely criticised at the time, but the presidents believes that the laws are created for a purpose, and he also believes that they should be enforced without regard to violators. The recent action of the Minnesota court is strong defence in favor of the president's attitude. The lessons contained will be far reaching in effect, and they will prove a warning to all questionable enterprises.

THE SERVANT GIRL QUESTION

The officers at Ellis Island, where all immigrants land, furnish some sensible information on the servant girl question. In a recent interview with a correspondent for "The Oaks" a weekly magazine published in Chicago, the information was gathered that fully 60 per cent. of the unmarried women who come from Germany to this country and other foreign countries, are betrothed before they leave home, and many of them are furnished transportation by the men they are to marry.

Of the remaining 40 per cent, the officer claimed that they come to our shores for the sole purpose of finding a husband and a home. Conditions have changed very materially during the past few years. The time was when this class of girls were depended upon to fill the ranks of domestic in American homes, but today their only ambition is to find a home of their own. It is a laudable ambition and speaks well for the country, but not very consoling to housekeepers.

The servant girl problem is one of the most serious that confronts the country today, with no relief in sight. Co-operative or neighborhood housekeeping may become a necessity. The plan has been tried and is working successfully in some communities. There is no question but that a group of a dozen families can live cheaper and with less annoyance on the co-operative plan than in any other way.

Gazette advertisers are more than pleased with results. The new rate recently established gives them an opportunity to use liberal space for a one time ad, at a nominal price, and the fresh announcement if properly written, always brings results. Next to personal solicitation, the newspaper is the most effective medium. The Daily and Weekly Gazette reaches more homes in Janesville and Rock County than all other papers combined. If you have anything to say to one people, try it.

The manufacturers and non-union workmen of Indiana, have formed a non-union union, which may be far-reaching in results, as other states are already interested in a similar action. The constitution provides that all men who are willing to work shall be given an opportunity and protected in their rights. This is a move in the right direction and popular sentiment will endorse the movement.

Men who are complaining about the Municipal League settlement are men, as a rule who did not belong to the organization. It never requires much of an effort to kick, but the occupation is destitute of either pleasure or glory. The League displayed good sense in disposing of the suits commenced. It won a signal victory that will be far reaching in its results.

The paper mills in the Wisconsin Valley are likely to be closed for an indefinite period on account of labor troubles. This effects the newspapers directly as the supply of print paper seldom exceeds the 'emand, and when scarcity causes an advance in price, the publisher and not the public pays the advance. The price of a newspaper seldom advances.

The conservative element in the senate, slipped a cog on the bill providing for the election of United States senators by popular vote. While the bill carries with it nothing more than a memorial to congress, asking for a constitutional amendment, and will amount to nothing; it humiliates the state. There is no popular demand for the change and no necessity for it.

Sir Thomas Lipton is a plucky sailor. Shamrock III was demolished in a gale, but repairs are already being made and the boat will be in commission in time for the August races.

If the state is to do anything at all for the St. Louis exposition, it cannot afford to be niggardly. The fair will eclipse the World's Fair at Chicago and Wisconsin can hardly afford to be left out.

The city of St. Paul is favored with a legacy of $4,000.00 from the Wilder estate. The fund is to be used for the poor of the city. Mr. Carnegie is not the only philanthropist.

The teamsters of Chicago lived up to their agreement, failing to go out on a sympathetic strike when ordered. They possess common sense, and should be congratulated.

Senator Quarles appears to be in bad odor with the governor's Milwaukee organ. He has plenty of good company and will not be lonesome.

It is reported that the Milwaukee defaulter has slipped to South America. It is always a good plan to lock the barn after the horse has been stolen.

There are several country printers who would like to bid on the Milwaukee county printing.

PRESS COMMENT

Fond du Lac Reporter: The reformers at Milton have asked the two Methodist ministers of the place to act as village marshals. The clergymen will be wise to refuse. If they attend to the spiritual affairs of their congregations they will be too busy to mix up in the temporal ones.

Eau Claire Leader: The primary election bill as amended by the senate fills the party pledge. It might not be amiss for the assembly to pass it, otherwise it will be at fault. The people hope that there will be a compromise instead of the absolute defeat of the proposed principle. The senate in its action stands as a safeguard between the people and a measure which provides for sweeping changes, which is entirely untried, and which is as likely as not to prove detrimental to their best interests.

New York World: Over 10,000 immigrants landed at one port in one day, and Good Friday at that! Here is a problem in assimilation matching the Morgan load of undigested securities.

Baltimore Herald: Men and Women differ as to shopping propensities. The women prefer dry goods, while the taste of the men seem to incline to the wet variety.

DIES IN MIDST OF HIS SERMON

Philadelphia, Pa., April 20.—Rev. Dr. Francis A. Horton, pastor of Temple Presbyterian church, was stricken with apoplexy while preaching. He died shortly after being taken from the pulpit. Several worshippers went to his assistance and he was carried to his home, where he died without regaining consciousness. Dr. Horton was 58 years of age. Before coming to this city he held charges at Oakland, Cal., Cleveland, O., and Providence, R. I.

MANY ATHLETES IN HIGH SCHOOL

OUTLOOK FOR WINNING TRACK TEAM VERY GOOD.

BOYS WILL BEGIN WORK

Actual Training to Start the Present
Week for the County
Meet.

Athletic interest at the high school will center for the coming four weeks in the track team. Practice begins in earnest tonight, and will be kept up without intermission until the county meet, which will probably take place at Evansville four weeks from last Saturday. That meet promises to be fully as important as in the past, and will this year be participated in by a team from Edgerton high school, whose representatives were missing from the events last year.

Met This Morning
Coach W. B. Norris called together this morning those men who have aspirations in track and field directions, and laid out the work before them. Prospects are bright for a team which can hold its own against contesting schools, but there is a long course of strenuous work ahead for the first time, and for the remainder of the week would meet three nights out of the five. Next week the screws will probably be tightened somewhat and the athletes given stiffer course, probably working every night in the week, outdoors, whenever possible.

Coming Meets Planned
All training will be focused upon the date of the county meet, when it is desired to get the men into the pink of condition. All of the high schools of the county are making preparations for the meet this year. A triangular meet at Beloit will probably be another of the red letter dates on the athletic calendar, and the goal of all efforts will be at Madison in the annual interscholastic.

Baseball Unsettled
By the end of this week it will be known whether or not a baseball team will be sent out to wear the high school colors this spring. The presence of sufficient material is still unproved. Unless there are reasonable chances of a higher winning percentage than that of last year it is felt that it would be inadvisable to put a nine in the field. The financial proposition is somewhat ticklish.

TO SERVE ONE YEAR IN PRISON

Beloit Forger Will Join His Companion in Waupun Very Soon.

Upon advice from his attorney, Reginald Stires, charged with forgery and brought to this city from Beloit for trial, Saturday afternoon pleaded guilty to the charge and was sentenced to one year at Waupun. Edward Mitchell, his partner to the crime, had pleaded guilty and received sentence on the preceding Thursday, but Stires refused to enter a similar plea, and his trial was set for April 27. Edward H. Peterson was appointed to defend him in the municipal court. Upon investigating the case he was convinced that the wisest course for Stires would be to confess his guilt and hope for as light a sentence as possible.

The two men had succeeded in passing one check for $10, signed with the name of G. W. Sparks, superintendent of the Fairbanks, Morse & Co. plant, and had offered another when the forgery was detected. Stires explained the presence of one of these checks in his possession by saying that Mitchell and given it to him concealed in the leaves of a time table, and that he did not know it was there.

ST. MARY'S REALIZES HANDSOMELY ON SHOW

Product of "Pinafore" Proves Profitable for Beloit Hospital and Local Church.

After paying all expenses connected with the presentation of "Pinafore" at Beloit last week, St. Mary's church has added a neat sum toward dissolving the church debt. In addition to that the fund for a hospital at Beloit had grown appreciably through the share of the proceeds which went to the church in that city. The total amount cleared on the performance, before deducting the expense of taking the St. Cecilia society to Beloit, reached approximately three hundred dollars.

WILL GO TO PENNSYLVANIA

Departure in Near Future of Mr. and Mrs. Slocum Nicely Remembered.
Mr. and Mrs. George Slocum will soon leave for Scranton, Pennsylvania, where they will spend the summer with Mr. Slocum's parents. In remembrance of their approaching departure a number of their neighbors Saturday evening perpetrated a delightful surprise upon them and the evening was passed in card games and a jolly good time. Refreshments were served and before departing the guests left a handsome present with their hosts.

SICK FUND FOUND USEFUL

Painters Give Aid to Their Disabled Members Through New Fund.
Several cases of sickness in the ranks of the painters' union have been materially aided through a "sick fund" which that organization has recently established. By slightly increasing their monthly dues they have been able to set aside a sufficient quantity to give help, at the rate of $3.50 a week to members who are unable to work through sickness.

LAST SESSION OF THE CITY DADS

The Present Council Will Meet for the Last Time This Evening.

Tonight, the last night before the term of office of the new council begins, the city fathers will hold a special meeting to approve the bonds of the new officers. The bonds, eighteen in all, are now in the hands of the city clerk in due form. Routine business will also be transacted by the council. Among other orders which may come before the council is one from the Janesville Street Railway company, asking permission to construct a curve at the Myers house corner. The company wishes to center its line at that corner, and in order to do that a "Y" will be needed so that cars from both directions can go direct to the barns.

CEMENT TESTS ARE MOST INTERESTING

PROCESS USED TO DETERMINE STRENGTH, UNIQUE.

FACTORY WORK PROGRESSING

Diminutive Posts Are Made, That Are Used as Samples by Salesmen.

Cement testing is an interesting process as carried on at the cement post factory, and the mechanism required to successfully carry out the test, is of superior workmanship and is the result of many years of trial and development.

The machine in use at the factory is the Fairbanks automatic and is constructed on the same principle as a scale. A small amount of the cement to be tested is made into what is technically known as a briquette, and this is placed in a couple of holders, which are arranged to pull in opposite directions when the strain comes.

Weight Applied

The weight is applied by a stream of very fine shot, which runs from a reservoir into a brass ball suspended at the end of a steel yard arm, and when the briquette breaks, this arm falls, automatically cutting off the flow of shot. The shot in the ball is then weighed and the number of pounds necessary to break the specimen is ascertained.

No Springs

There being no springs or hydraulic apparatus, but everything of automatic design the machine is free from all jars that would tend to break the specimen before its greatest efficiency had been reached.

Other Test

Then, too, there is a testing for fineness, which is done by weighing 16 ounces of the cement and passing it through a series of sieves after which it is put back into the scale and weighed, the bar indicating the percentage of residue. The question of fineness is a very important one, as the tensile strength is in direct proportion thereto.

The Samples

A couple of diminutive posts have been made for samples, to be used by the company's salesmen. They are two feet in length and so made that the method of construction can be better explained and more readily understood.

LABOR DAY PLANS BEING PREPARED

Meeting Will Soon Be Held That Will Decide Many Interesting Points.

Preparations are now going on apace for Labor day. For some weeks the committees on speakers has been at work, and it is expected to report at an early meeting. At the last meeting of the Federated Trades Council the general committee was appointed. The members of the committee are Timothy J. McKeigue, Fred Smith, and Frank Allen. Every plan is being made with the hope of surpassing all previous celebrations under the auspices of organized labor.

CURRENT NEWS NOTES

Meet to Organize: Another gathering of the Laborers' union is called for tonight at Bricklayers' hall to form a permanent organization and make application for charter.

Eastern Star: A regular meeting of Janesville Chapter, No. 69 O. E. S., Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock at Masonic hall. A full attendance is desired as business of importance will come before the Chapter.

Sunday Men's Meeting: F. F. Lewis, president of the young men's Christian association, led the Sunday afternoon meeting at the association building. The attendance was large and the meeting thoroughly profitable.

Maccabees Here Tonight: The degree team and a half hundred members of the Beloit lodge of Maccabees will arrive in this city via special interurban car tonight to review the Rock River tent and initiate candidates into the order.

Splendid Band Dance: The first post-Lenten band dance was held in Assembly hall Saturday night and was an unqualified success. The music furnished by the Imperial band was spirited and the size of the crowd left nothing to be desired. A number of Beloiters swelled the total in attendance.

Unions Adding Members: With the advent of the spring building period, the carpenters' and painters' unions are taking in a large number of new members, and are entering upon the most prosperous period of the year.

Building Complete Next Month: Bassett and Echlin expect to move into their new building some time next month. The contract calls for completion the first of June, but with fair weather the contractors expect to beat that date considerably. In ten rainless days the roof could be completed, they say.

Much Machinery Moving: Punch and shear machines are being sent out from Janesville shops to all points of the compass. The Rock River Machine company has just sent a number 10½ type of this machine, weighing 1100 pounds, to Keshish, and a number 12, weighing 2000 pounds, to Grant Rapids, Wis. The company will begin at once on the construction of a number 17 machine, weighing two tons, which will be sent to Cincinnati.

Panama Canal

Panama Canal as an investment. This superior borrowing power is what makes it feasible for our government to go ahead and dig an inter-oceanic canal where the private French company had to give up for lack of ability to get the necessary capital, and the American Nicaragua company had to abandon operations for a like reason. The Panama canal will cost the United States nothing more than an annual interest charge of possibly $1,000,000. The more quickly the work is pushed to completion the sooner this charge on the Treasury will be met, in whole or in part by the earnings of the canal as a productive investment. The Suez Canal, after paying all charges of operation, maintenance and improvement, regularly earns a net profit of about $10,000,000, or 10 per cent. on the amount invested in the enterprise, which is approximately $100,000,000. With the immense improvements that have been made in the mechanical methods for canal digging, and resultant economies, it is quite possible that the canal may be built for the $144,000,000 that was set down in the careful estimate made by Admiral Walker and the engineer of the Isthmian Canal Commission. It is not unreasonable to believe that the traffic through the canal would soon become very large, and that the canal tolls would amount to enough not only to pay the interest upon the bond issue, but also provide an ample sinking fund for the ultimate redemption of the entire cost of the enterprise. Thus, as a financial undertaking, we may confidently predict that the Panama canal will be a brilliant success for the Government of the United States. All further steps in the business, must now await the action of the Columbian Congress. Our readers should understand that there was no such body as a Congress in existence in Columbia. But it was arranged to go through the form of holding a Congressional election, and some ostensible parliamentary action will be taken at Bogota in the present month. It is reported that there will be some bitter opposition to the ratification of the treaty, although it must not be supposed that such an attitude is assumed on good faith upon the public merits of the project. The treaty is favorable to Columbia beyond all reasonable expectations and it will, of course, be ratified. Our Government is likely to be notified of such action within the next few weeks. The Treasury will then pay to the French company its $1,000,000, and to Columbia its $10,000,000. —From "The Progress of the World" in the American Monthly Review.

...ENORMOUS WAGES...

Six hours' work a day at the rate of 405 francs, or, in British currency, of £16 1s per minute. These are the terms on which, according to the calculations of an ingenious and statistically minded Frenchman, the most highly paid official in the civilized world—and it is fairly safe to throw in the uncivilized world as well—holds his position. As all socialist reformers may have guessed long before we inform them of the fact, the "job" is unfortunately not one of those that are open to competition among deserving candidates, such as they themselves would be. It is hereditary, and happens to be held at present by Nicholas II, czar of all the Russias, whose civil list, when duly divided, on the assumption—a liberal one, some may think—of a six hours' day, yields the very handsome amount indicated.

Yet trifling as that may seem it is exactly double of what the third of the European emperors gets as his "screw," £3 10s for supervising the art, literature, and music of the German empire, to say nothing of "mail fishing" in the east and west, or of yachting and partridge slaughtering in Britain, is assuredly not exorbitant. And yet every time the second hand of his watch makes a complete revolution the kaiser can congratulate himself on having 108 more than his uncle of Great Britain. But, from pounds we come down to shillings and pence in the case of presidents of republics. Poor Mr. Loubet must contrive to make both ends meet with 5 francs a minute. And even that is almost wealth when compared with one and eight-pence which Mr. Roosevelt draws. It is more profitable to be "roi de l'air," as our Gallic friends style the distributor of libraries and organs, than president of the United States.—Glasgow (Scotland) Herald.

A HEADGEAR EPISODE

Senators Spooner and Newlands unintentionally exchanged hats in the anteroom of the White House one day last week, and when they met, a few minutes afterward, Mr. Spooner exclaimed, indignantly: "Some good for nothing scoundrel got my hat in there!" "Me, too," replied the new senator from Nevada, as he removed a suit hat which appeared much too large for him, and looked at it contemptuously. "Mine," he added, "was an imported hat and it costs me $12. This old plug looks as though it might be a $5 tile marked down to $1.38."

"Why, that's my hat," replied Mr. Spooner, laughing. "And you have mine," replied Mr. Newlands, with profuse apologies for the reflections he had cast upon the quality of the Wisconsin senator's headpiece. "I recognize it by the narrow rim and the black felt band, while yours has a wide brim and a silk band." Mr. Spooner has a large head, which is accentuated by the breezy style in which he wears his long bushy hair, which looks as though a western cyclone was passing through it without uprooting it. A comedian in search of a comical stage makeup should have seen the Wisconsin senator with the natty little narrow brimmed hat of Senator Newlands. The humor of the situation was not confined to Mr. Spooner. Senator Newlands has a thin, closely cut crop of "golden pink" hair. The broad brimmed beaver of Mr. Spooner was prevented from obscuring his face by the ears of the Nevada senator.—New York Herald.

Magazines
In the April Atlantic is a paper which will prove of exceptional interest to men of affairs as well as to students of business economics. It is a searching and practical discussion of the function of the stock and produce exchanges by Charles A. Conant of the Morton Trust Company, of New York, who is an exceptionally equipped writer upon questions of commerce and finance. Mr. Conant outlines clearly and convincingly the part played by the stock exchange in all of its activities of the business world, and particularly points out its paramount importance for the commercial welfare of the United States. That delicate register of values that sensitive governor of production, that accurate barometer of people's needs could not be replaced by any process that any statesocialist has devised or suggested."

COWBOYS AT THE PLAY.

One of Them Tried to Make It Easier for the Heroine by Roping the Villain.

Under a recent date the San Antonio correspondent of the St. Louis Republic writes that there was a fascinating conglomeration of the drama of true, wholesome Texas life at the Grand Opera house last night. Zach Mulhall, general live stock agent of the Frisco, is here with his cowboy band, and they occupied eight boxes at the Grand last night at the presentation of Hal Reid's "Human Hearts."

"Can my boys make all the noise they want to?" asked Col. Mulhall.

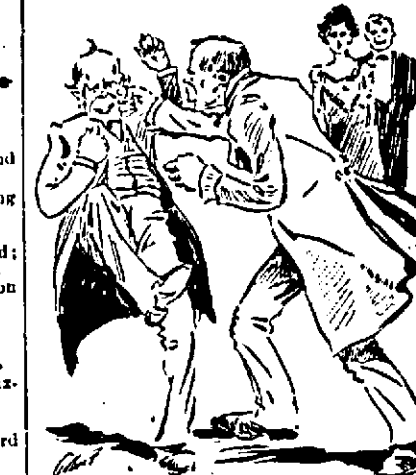

EMPTIED IT AT THE CEILING.

before he accepted the invitation. He was assured that they could. The band was attired in leather leggings, buckskin shirts, campaign hats and red bandanna handkerchiefs. They carried Colt's six-shooters and belts full of cartridges. Miss Lucile Mulhall, the pretty daughter of Col. Mulhall, who can rope and tie a steer in 38 seconds flat and sing an operatic air equal to a prima donna, accompanied the band as sponsor. After the third curtain the band struck up "Dixie," with such feeling that everybody cheered until they were hoarse, but the climax of enthusiasm and consternation came when Miss Mulhall snatched a six-shooter out of one of the men's pockets and emptied it in the direction of the ceiling. The "boys" were not averse to following her example, and while they continued to play music they punctuated the stirring notes with a fusillade of shots. There was wild consternation in the big audience, but a panic was averted. There was another tremendous sensation when Jim Hopkins, a big raw-boned cowboy, not liking the way the heroine was being treated, undertook to lasso the villain. While unsuccessful the attempt caught the fancy of the crowd and Hopkins was forced to take the stage and, lariat in hand, bow his acknowledgments. On the whole, it was a bit of the "wild and woolly west," not witnessed here for many years.

ENTIRELY TOO POLITE.

Exchange of Courteous Remonstrance Leads to Hot Fight at an Irish Hall.

The most characteristic instance of carrying politeness to an extreme came off not long since at an Irish hall. As related by one of the sons of Erin who keenly appreciates a good thing, it seems that one gay Lothario, in crossing the room to request Bridget's hand in the next reel, stumbled over the outstretched foot of Mr. Terence O'Grady, who promptly arose and, in the politest manner, said: "I beg your pardon, sir." "No offense—no offense, sir, at all," responded the other; "it was my fault." "I beg your pardon, sir, it was entirely my fault," was the response, accompanied with a graceful wave of the hand. "No, sir," answered Mither O'Toole, "yer intirely in the wrong, sir; I tell ye it was altogether my fault." "I tell ye it was not, sir," responded Mither O'Grady; "do you mane to say I'd be tilling a lie, sir?" "Bad luck to ye, sir, d'ye mane to say I'd be intirely tilling a lie, sir, when I tell ye it wasn't your fault?" responded O'Toole, quite wroth. "Bad luck to yer bad brading, ye ignorant polithroon; d'ye mane ye'd be getting the better uv me in manners?" shouted Mither O'Grady, as with a tip and a blow he laid the unfortunate O'Toole flat as a pancake. The latter rallied, and a rough-and-tumble ensued, which ended in the expulsion of both gentlemen from the ballroom.

"YE IGNORANT POLITHROON"

Book Reviews.

Doubleday, Page & Company offer the following books:

"The Nature Study Idea," just published by Doubleday, Page & Co. is a suggestive analysis of the movement which has grown so stupendously in the last few years, by Liberty H. Bailey, editor of Country Life in America, who is at the head as a leader of Nature Study.

"Before the Dawn" J. A. Ahtshelers novel of the fall of Richmond, published the other day by Doubleday, Page & Co. is a thoroughly American tale, yet it has already been republished in England where it is expected to be successful as a vivid story of the game of war.

Doubleday, Page & Co. published last year "How to Make Baskets" by Mary White, and the book was so successful that they are now publishing "More Baskets and How to Make Them," by the same author, giving Indian weaves, hat making, the making of chairs and many other things.

The recent death of A. C. Wheeler by which it became known that he was "J. P. M." author of "A Journey to Nature" and "Tangled Up in Buelah Land" has, it is said, led to an advance sale of unexpected proportions for his posthumous novel, "The Conquering of Kato" which Doubleday, Page & Co. are about to publish.

Who Passed the Great Football Man?

(Original.)

It won't do to mention the colleges or the parties interested. They must all go under fictitious names. We'll call the colleges Kings and Queens. Kings was a large institution, and Queens was a small one. But Queens had been lugged through a series of successful games for the championship by Spangler, a splendid, powerful fellow, whose only fault was that he was always in danger of falling on his examination. And now, when the final game of the series was coming on, he had to go and make a guy of himself by breaking down in analytical geometry. No student could play football for the championship who had not passed in every subject. The consequence was that Queens must lose after all her victories because the great bulk of a fellow couldn't learn mathematics.

"Blasphemy!" said the team and the college generally. "What's mathematics compared with football?" Now, Professor Plum of the chair of mathematics had every reason to help Spangler through. He had himself been the best tackle when an undergraduate the college had ever had and was still devoted to the game. Moreover, he was engaged to be married to Spangler's sister. He had agreed to give the athlete a final trial the day before the game was to be played and be as lenient as possible with his papers, but the professor was a conscientious man, and Spangler must get the average required by college law.

And so it was that the day before the game, when everybody said that Spangler should be spending his time legitimately practicing with the team instead of wasting it in useless figures, he was sitting in a classroom endeavoring to answer the questions Plum had written out for him.

It was 8 o'clock before Spangler handed in his papers, and Professor Plum, who did not relish spending an evening apart from his betrothed, took them to the little boudoir where Alice usually received him and, taking his pencil, began to look them over, giving each answer a number denoting its value. The rule was that the student must get sixty out of a possible hundred in order to pass. Alice, who had been graduated at the head of her class the year before at the woman's college attached to the university, asked the professor to read the questions and their answers aloud.

There were ten questions. The first was a complete breakdown and was given a zero. The second was answered perfectly and received 100, the third 60 and so on to the end. As the professor put down the numbers Alice added them in her head, and when eight had been answered with only a total of 400, or an average of 40, she knew that unless the next two questions received 100 each the result would be a failure.

"I think," she said, "that you made a slight mistake in giving only 50 to the sixth question. It was in two parts. The first part was not answered entirely wrong, and the second was all right."

After a brief argument the professor was convinced and added 30 to the score. The eighth question was fairly answered and secured 50. This gave a total of 510, and the last question must receive 90 to make the required average. The professor, who had not kept tally, was about to mark 60 for it, when Alice stopped him.

"The first four out of five subdivisions in this question are right," she said.

"The third is wrong," "Figure it again."

He did so and found an error in his own work. He changed the marking to 80.

"Before you take the average," said Alice, who knew that it was still short by 10 numbers, "look over the fourth question again."

The professor did so, and Alice took issue with him on his interpretation of the answer, claiming that the student meant one thing while the professor claimed he meant another. Plum was not thoroughly convinced, but, feeling that one on trial should have the benefit of all doubts, yielded and added 10 to the total.

"I sincerely hope," said the professor, "that the average will be up to the mark, but I fear not."

Meanwhile several hundred students who had tracked the professor had congregated outside the house and now began to howl for the result.

"I'll make the addition before them," said Plum. "Then neither they nor the faculty can accuse me, since I don't know the result myself."

Going out on the piazza, he faced the expectant crowd.

"Gentlemen, I have laid down a fair value for each question. I do not know the result, but will strike an average."

"I'll do it for you!" cried the captain of the football team and seized the paper.

Alice had followed with a candle, which she held while the student ran over the figures. In a moment he threw the papers over her head as well as his cap and shouted:

"Sixty!"

There was a yell that shook the college building, and Spangler, who was present, was picked up and carried away on the shoulders of the football team.

And this is how Queens won the championship for that year. Professor Plum was looked upon with as much favor as if he had strained a point to pass Spangler. No one ever knew that it was Alice who had pulled him through.

Janesville Daily Gazette, Monday, April 20, 1863.—We regret to say that the report received on Saturday that Gen. Stoneman had taken possession of Gordonsville, Va., is declared premature. We expect to take it soon as a part of Gen. Hooker's army is moving up that way. If we have not captured Gordonsville, we are happy to say that the army of the Potomac is once more in motion.

The attack of the Knights of the Golden Circle on a Union meeting in Indiana and the murder of a soldier by them, will be the beginning of the downfall of that treasonable order. They have been declared, "public enemies" and will be hunted out and exterminated.

The County Treasurer, under a resolution of the County Board, directing him to pay in full that part of the county script remaining outstanding after the tenth of April is now paying in full all that is presented to him while the fund lasts, whether the fifty per cent had been paid or not. BACKING UP STATEMENTS

If this store puts a statement in print concerning its methods or its merchandise you can depend upon that statement being in every way backed up. We are careful here never to make statements which cannot be backed up. Public confidence came to us by a strict adherence to our printed promises. We make some forceful statements in this "ad" concerning certain lines of fresh seasonable goods. Suppose you visit the shop and see for yourself how carefully they are backed up.

IMPORTANT OUTER GARMENT SALE.

We've made careful preparation for a big selling event in our garment rooms. When you see style and quality linked to such low prices it will certainly pay you to carefully investigate.

Suits & Jackets.

Women's Dress Skirts.

Recent large shipments have put our stock of Suits, Jackets, Blouses, Coats so far ahead of what might ordinarily be called a complete stock that all hopes of any house hereabouts reaching us must be blasted. We cannot picture in cold type the loveliness of the suits and spring garments. They come from New York's leading manufacturers and are very late. Suits in Etamine, Pongee, and fancy materials beautifully trimmed and only one of a style. Values in suits at $10, $15 to $25 in pretty mixtures that cannot be matched.

Spring garments in black taffeta and Peau de Sole silks, changeable cloth, taffeta, black velour, cream broadcloth, colored etamines, natural pongee, etc., for ladies and misses. Swell styles that will not be common.

Ladies looking for exclusive novelties can surely get suited here.

Hundreds of them—styles to suit every one.

Some elaborately trimmed, others finished with stitching, strapped seams, etc. Plain and fancy wool materials, Etamines, Toffeta and Peau de Sole silks, lace net covered, cream and Marine blue Etamines with handsome silk drop-skirts, etc. We call particular attention to the reasonable prices at which we are able to offer our ready made garments. No complaints on that score.

This is novelty season in more ways than one, but we are talking ready to wear garments, and we have laid ourselves out to gather together a collection that cannot be out-bested by any line outside of the very largest. Read over again, what we said about backing up statements. They are cold facts.
